ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a collaborative learning system capable of collaborative learning by operating resources of a server from a plurality of clients, activity model data is used which can express roles and the relation and behaviors between roles. The status of roles of each learner can therefore be monitored. Resource operations and interpretation of the operations of roles are both registered. Resource operations can be added while retaining the role interpretation function.